FRENCH JOURNALS.

Shares of Several Bought and Sold Daily on the Stock Exchange.

Most of the French journals have a sale of depeches, where bulletins are displayed and a museum of relics of the paper is kept. French journalism is much more personal in regard to its literary composition than that of England or America. A large proportion of the articles are signed with the names of the writers, even when the work is more or less of a routine nature, such as the sporting or law departments of the paper. On the other hand, the ownership of newspapers is less frequently lodged in single hands than is the case in America. Very many of the French papers are owned by companies or associations, while the stock of several of the best known, such as The Figaro and Petit Journal, is bought and sold daily on the Stock Exchange, the quotations appearing as regularly as those of railway shares or Government bonds.

The circulation of all but a very few of the Paris papers varies enormously, according to the contents. If a paper contains a striking article, well advertised previously, or if its feuilleton, continued story or memoirs, which most of the French journals consider an essential part of their daily issue, is by some well known author, the circulation will run up 50,000 or 100,000 in a week and drop again as soon as the special feature is discontinued. When Le Jour began publishing M. Henri Rochefort's memoirs, its circulation went up fivefold, although the price of the paper had been doubled in order to make hay while the sun shone.

The French press is much more concentrated in the capital than that of other European countries. In Germany, for instance, it is not the press of Berlin that has the largest circulation or the greatest influence. In this, as in many other matters, however, the French press only bears out the saying that "Paris is France."—Chautauquan.

Singular Assurance.

"Those people next door persist in bowing to me."
"Aren't you acquainted with them?"
"Not the least in the world. We have merely used their telephone half a dozen times."—Chicago Record.

A Blow in the Jaw.

Jack—I called on Miss Fitz last night, but didn't stay long, as she was complaining that her teeth ached.
Jesse—Isn't it a shame? And it was such an expensive set too.—Tit-Bits.

Proper Enough.

"Would you consider it proper to precede the father of your sweetheart down stairs?"
"It may be proper, but it isn't always safe."—Yale Record.

Well Provided For.

She—Did your uncle mention you in his will?
He—Oh, yes. He left the $1,000 that I owed him to the Keeley institute.—Truth.

A Man of Nerve.

First Passenger—Would you—ah—lend me your spectacles a moment, please?

Second Passenger—Certainly, sir.
First Passenger—Ah—thank you. Now, as you cannot see to read your paper, would you mind letting me have it, too, please?—New York Sunday World.

The Best Rest Test.

There are two kinds of sarsaparilla: The best—and the rest. The trouble is they look alike. And when the rest dress like the best who's to tell them apart? Well, "the tree is known by its fruit." That's an old test and a safe one. And the taller the tree the deeper the root. That's another test. What's the root—the record of these sarsaparillas? The one with the deepest root is Ayer's. The one with the richest fruit; that, too, is Ayer's. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has a record of half a century of cures; a record of many medals and awards—culminating in the medal of the Chicago World's Fair, which, admitting Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best—shut its doors against the rest. That was greater honor than the medal, to be the only Sarsaparilla admitted as an exhibit at the World's Fair. If you want to get the best sarsaparilla of your druggist, here's an infallible rule: Ask for the best and you'll get Ayer's. Ask for Ayer's and you'll get the best.
